A Golden Past, A Bright Future
Bethany’s New President Leads the College into the Future
THE GUSTS of wind that almost ripped Bethany’s 2008 Commencement speaker “Bud” Selig’s text from his hands may have been a portent for the year ahead as we position ourselves for a vital and prosperous 21st century while building on our historic traditions as a small college of national distinction.

In fact, “whirlwind” might be an apt metaphor for the year ahead at Bethany as we embark on a $52 million transformative capital campaign, build new initiatives and partnerships in the state and region and create new opportunities for students and faculty consistent with Bethany’s mission of academic rigor, service and values-centered education. Organizations such as the InterAmerican Consortium comprised of Bethany College, Elmira College, Lake Erie College, Lewis University, Neumann College and Wesley College have enhanced possibilities for study throughout the world. In addition, Bethany is pursuing a partnership with Harlaxton College of England in Lincolnshire, UK. The intense mini-term, summer term or semester-long experience emphasizes the study of British and European cultures. Along with a rigorous academic component, the program includes formal and informal travel opportunities throughout the UK and Europe.

Locally, eleven students enrolled last summer in the first online courses to be offered by Bethany College and the Online Consortium of Independent Colleges and Universities (OCICU) and Bethany has signed an agreement with West Virginia Northern Community College (WVNCC) allowing adult community college students to continue their studies through Bethany at two WVNCC campuses. Finally, a partnership program has been developed for Bethany students in a multitude of majors to benefit from the state-of-the-art equipment, facilities and location of the Art Institute of Pittsburgh in the heart of the City.

“Preserving the status quo or following the path of least resistance often is the most negative option because it requires neither vision nor courage,” Commissioner Selig told the assembled Bethany community at our 2008 Commencement. Bud knows whereof he speaks because, in addition to introducing many unconventional changes to major league baseball, he brought the game back to Milwaukee in 1970 after the Braves decamped to Atlanta.

“There were no road maps as to how to get this done,” he told the Bethany community. “All I had was a vision and a desire to see it through.” The willingness to take calculated risks to achieve lasting change is, in fact, a hallmark of successful leaders in all walks of life. I have assembled a seasoned and dynamic team, building upon a dedicated and able existing senior management staff, to move the College forward. The spirit of this entrepreneurial vision has impelled Bethany College to recently initiate a transformative five-year, $52 million transformational capital campaign to secure the future of Bethany while incrementally raising alumni giving from 17 percent to 35 percent. Speaker and Honorary Degree recipient Selig, by the way, did manage to hang onto his prepared remarks—by holding the text tightly in both hands. He concluded by issuing a challenge to the graduating Class of 2008, Bethany’s newest alumni: “May you live in interesting times.”

Alumni, friends, faculty, staff and students of Bethany will surely be living in interesting times as we move forward together to ensure the future of this vibrant mountaintop community.
Bethany College, a small college of national distinction, was founded March 2, 1860. For nearly 170 years, Bethany College has been a highly contemporary institution based in the tradition of the liberal arts. The College offers a wide array of studies, awarding Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Arts degrees in more than 30 fields of study, many with options for emphasis. Students also have the option of including one or more optional minors as part of their program.

The College’s program of liberal arts education prepares students for a lifetime of work and a life of significance. Bethany places particular emphasis on leadership and incorporates pre-professional education in dentistry, engineering, law, medicine, physical therapy, public administration, theology and veterinary medicine.

Bethany’s 1,300-acre campus is located in the northern panhandle of West Virginia in the foothills of the Allegheny Mountains. Pittsburgh, America’s Most Livable City, is a 50-minute drive from campus. Wheeling, W.Va., Washington, Pa., and Steubenville, Ohio are less than a half-hour away.

Founded by Alexander Campbell, who provided the land and funds for the first building and served as the first president, Bethany has been a four-year private liberal arts college affiliated with the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), since its inception. This religious body, of which Campbell was one of the principal founders, continues to support and encourage the College, but exercises no sectarian control. Students from virtually every religious community attend Bethany.

Values
Bethany College is an academic community founded on the close interaction between students and faculty in the educational process. Bethany College values intellectual rigor and freedom, diversity of thought and lifestyle of the human experience, personal growth within a community context, intellectual rigor and freedom, diversity of thought and lifestyle of the human experience, personal growth within a community context, and responsible engagement with public issues. Its programs are designed to engage the mind through emphasis on discipline in thinking, motivation in the search for knowledge and acquisition of the intellectual resources for a lifetime of learning, imbue the spirit through the opportunity for intellectual challenge, collaborative enterprise, artistic competition, artistic expression, personal growth, and meaningful work to enlarge the world through exposure to the abundant diversity of thought and lifestyle of the human community, support for personal engagement with societies and cultures different from one’s own and commitment to service.

A Master Plan
"With your participation in the inclusive master planning process, Bethany in 2013 will be a college well-positioned for challenges of the future while very much the academically rigorous, values-centered community for which we are known today."
A MASTER PLAN

Section 1: As you begin your first full academic year as Bethany’s 19th president, what are your three strategic initiatives?

Growing the enrollment is going to be paramount; we’ve implemented a new enrollment model that will diversify our student population while at the same time growing our traditional enrollment by 300 over a 3-5 year period. Attracting the West Virginia Governor’s Honors Academy for the summers of 2008-2010 also offers us an unparalleled opportunity to attract the state’s best and brightest as future students. We are definitely headed in the right direction. We will expand our delivery systems as well with online classes, “stack on” programs at selected partner institutions, international programs and even some graduate programs. Strategically, for the good of future students, families and friends to feel comfortable staying on our campus, this facility should also be utilized as a professional development center for businesses and corporations in the Wheeling, Steubenville and Pittsburgh markets. What an incomparable setting for a corporate retreat!

Section 2: How do these fit with Bethany’s historic mission and rich tradition?

There is no question that Bethany can be proud of its 168-year history as a small college of national distinction. However, we need to build upon that foundation to meet the challenges of an information-based society and the expectations of today’s students and their families which far surpass those of the generations that preceded them. Financial sustainability is critical if we are to blend our traditional values and phenomenal history with the needs and realities of the current marketplace. That means raising money to reduce the percentage of tuition discounting and running the College more like a business by making our scenic campus and historic facilities work for us 365 days a year, not just when classes are in session.

We must be more contemporary in our approach. This will prepare our graduates more fully for what many of them are calling a “shrinking world.” We must provide students with opportunities to take some classes online, we must expand learning opportunities in other countries; we must develop synergistic partnerships with other institutions that will supplement learning on our campus; and finally, we must take advantage of new technologies in the classroom.

We should make our facilities open to a wider audience when classes aren’t in session. This includes summer athletic camps, our new residential program for youth — Camp Canyon — and programs such as the West Virginia Governor’s Honors Academy. These represent proactive ways to generate revenue while also bringing some of the best, brightest and most talented students to our campus.

Section 3: Using a strengths-weaknesses-opportunities-challenges (SWOT) analysis, how would you assess Bethany at the beginning of the second academic year?

Bethany is an outstanding educational enterprise. Graduates are receiving a first-rate education, and our stellar outcomes demonstrate that. However, we need to be more contemporary in our approach. Today’s students are more mobile than those of earlier generations; therefore, we must be more responsive to their needs. This includes student-friendly facilities where they live and learn, including additional suite-style student residences, upgraded student activities areas, more modern, “wired” classrooms with advanced technology, fitness centers, and enhanced athletic, fitness and recreational amenities. We must also offer program “add ons” like “Semester in the City” programs in Pittsburgh, greater study abroad opportunities and some non-traditional delivery systems.

This past summer, 11 students enrolled in our first online classes. During this academic year, we’ll pilot an interactive video course with another partner college and utilize new technology to bring an interactive lecture series to campus.

On the facilities side, our beautiful Mountainside Conference Center and Gresham Inn offer a historic, yet contemporary, meeting place for conferences from throughout our region. We want Bethany alumni, future students, families and friends to feel comfortable staying on our campus. This facility should also be utilized as a professional development center for businesses and corporations in the Wheeling, Steubenville and Pittsburgh markets. What an incomparable setting for a corporate retreat!

We recently finalized an agreement with Lexington Theological Seminary (LTS) to use our facilities for selective joint programming. We are the oldest Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) four-year college; LTS is the oldest Christian Church seminary. A new synergistic partnership with LTS will permit these two historic institutions to offer a wide variety of educational programs to lay leaders, clergy and aspiring lay leaders.

Section 4: Where does The Transformation Now! campaign for Bethany fill into this landscape?

The emphasis on stepped-up alumni participation will signal to major donors, including corporations and foundations, that Bethany’s core constituencies are committed to a future of vitality and excellence for their alma maters. This is critical. The campaign is also transformative in that it is based upon strategic, 10-year planning. Following up on the comprehensive Institutional Review completed in January 2008, have embarked upon a proactive planning process involving all college constituents that will inform us as to what Bethanians want their institution to look like in 2018.

Section 5: The College hosted an Installation Ceremony as a part of Homecoming. Why? The event was called an installation rather than a formal “inauguration” for a number of reasons. First, a college always hosts some type of event to signal the official start of a new presidency. However, as this is my third presidency, the celebration should not be about me. It should, however, be a “big deal” in terms of institutional memory and history. It was our feeling that it should not be an extravagant affair at a time when alumni are being asked to enhance their giving to the capital campaign and beyond.

The celebration was about bringing together all key constituencies on campus at a pivotal crossroads in the history of the College. It was an opportunity for alumni who may not have been back for a while to see Bethany today and for other friends, including the media and prospective donors, to get a feel for this exciting place. The resulting visibility in our marketplace will be felt in our admission and advancement process as we go forward.

Section 6: You’ve said that in five years, you’d like to be at a much better institution. Explain, please!

I meant at Bethany College, of course. Eighteen years ago, when I embarked on my first presidency at Lincoln Memorial University in Tennessee, I told trustees that within five years, I would feel comfortable staying on our campus. That was, of course, collective gasps at both institutions before I explained myself. But with your participation in the inclusive master planning process, Bethany in 2013 will be a college well-positioned for challenges of the future while still maintaining our innovativeness, values-centered community for which we are known today.

We are definitely headed in the right direction. We will expand our delivery systems as well with online classes, “stack on” programs at selected partner institutions, international programs and even some graduate programs. Strategically, for the good of the future of the College, this is our most important initiative.”

A Leader Remembered

Bethany Mourns Death of Former College President

The Bethany community is mourning the passing of former College President Cecil H. Underwood. A two-time Governor of the state of West Virginia, he served the College as Bethany’s 13th President. He died Monday, Nov. 24 at the age of 86 in the Charleston (W.Va.) Area Medical Center.

Underwood became the 13th director of Bethany College in July 1972, succeeding Perry E. Gresham. During Underwood’s tenure at Bethany, he oversaw the establishment of the College’s first academic computer center and the first continuing education program. He also spearheaded the implementation of an affirmative action plan and urged the adoption of a staff sabbatical policy. Underwood left Bethany in 1975 to run for Governor.

Cecil H. Underwood Bethany President 1972-1975

Underwood was a native of Josephs Mills, W.Va., Underwood earned his bachelor’s degree at Salem College in 1943 and received a master’s degree from West Virginia University in 1952. He was a high school teacher in St. Mary’s, W.Va, from 1943-46 and taught at Marietta (Ohio) College from 1946-50 before spending six years as President of Salem College. Underwood left Salem in 1956 when he was elected to his first term as governor.

Underwood had entered politics at the age of 22 when he was elected to the first of six two-year terms as a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates. He made history in 1956 when he became the youngest person ever elected governor in West Virginia. Forty years later — on his 74th birthday — Underwood made history again when he became the oldest person ever elected governor of any state.

Underwood is also remembered as an excellent businessman. Prior to coming to Bethany College, he was worked as an executive with Island Creek Coal and Monongah Chemical. He was also associated with the Software Valley Corporation of Morgantown, W.Va. In addition to his presidencies at Bethany and Salem, Underwood was a Political Science instructor at Marshall University and served as President of the National Association of State Councils on Vocational Education.

A memorial service was held at Monday, Dec. 1 at Christ United Methodist Church in Charleston. Underwood is survived by his son, Craig, two daughters, Cecilia and Sharon; and five grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, Hovah, in 2004.

Former US Attorney General Thornburgh Launches New Academic Year, Accepts Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree

Former United States Attorney General Richard (Dick) Thornburgh, a two-term governor of Pennsylvania, was the featured speaker at the Fall Convocation Sept. 11 kicking off the College’s 2008-2009 academic year.

Thornburgh brought not only an extensive educational background to the College, but also an activist role in promoting regional educational, welfare and economic development.

Awarding the Honorary Degree, Doctor of Laws, to Thornburgh following his remarks to the Bethany community, President Miller noted, “You have truly distinguished yourself as a major reformer of education, welfare and economic development and as a crusader against white collar crime, drug trafficking and terrorism around the world.

“In recognition of your significant and measurable impact upon our nation and region, your leadership in the fight against racial, religious and ethnic hate crimes, and your distinction in being named an honorary Special Agent by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI)—an honor you share with only 19 other persons in U.S. history, including seven former presidents—the College is honored to welcome you to the Bethany community.”

A native of Pittsburgh, Thornburgh earned his law degree from the University of Pittsburgh after receiving a bachelor’s degree in engineering from Yale University.

Before becoming attorney general, he served as United States attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania and as assistant attorney general for the Justice Department’s Criminal Division.

“Bethany and its leaders need not fear the future if we base our decisions on solid planning and best practice.”

President Scott D. Miller Bethany College
Oversaw the construction and revitalization of the football, track and softball facilities at Bethany. The College added a new synthetic all-weather track, artificial turf and lights on the football field (pictured), and a fully-renovated softball field. “I am grateful for the opportunity to lead this outstanding program,” Weaver said. “My first two years at Bethany have been personally and professionally gratifying. This is a very special place and I look forward to working with Dr. Miller and all of our coaches to build on the remarkable traditions and reputation of this outstanding college.”

In his third year at the helm of the Bison, Weaver is building Bethany into a top program in the PAC. During his tenure, 28 school records have been broken or tied and players have received All-Presidents’ Athletic Conference honors 26 times. In addition, Matt Cruse, an all-conference wide receiver on the football field, also earned NCAA Division III All-American honors in track and field.

Weaver was a four-year starter at defensive end/linebacker for Davidson College in North Carolina, where he graduated in 1990 with a Bachelor of Science degree in sociology and anthropology. He began his coaching career at Western Connecticut State in the fall of 1990, where he was the defensive line coach and special teams coordinator for two years. He then went to Hofstra University, serving as the defensive line coach for four seasons before taking the defensive coordinator position at West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Following his stint at West Virginia Wesleyan, Weaver moved on to Harvard for four seasons and then went to Columbia as the defensive coordinator for three years before becoming the 35th head football coach at Bethany in December, 2005.

Weaver and his wife, Kelly, reside in Bethany with their two daughters Delaney (6) and Casey (3).
Heir Jordan

Global Managing Partner and Bethany Trustee, Gregory Jordan ’81, talks passionately about his alma mater

It’s no secret that these are challenging economic times. Why a $52 million campaign for Bethany now? This is our time. With an outstanding new president, enhanced Board capital investments in campus facilities and of course, the enduring history and tradition of the College, it’s a perfect time to capitalize upon this momentum. It is axiomatic that in a perfect time to capitalize upon this momentum, we will be ensuring a vibrant momentum. It is axiomatic that in

“By crossing this threshold, we will be ensuring a vibrant and vital future for Bethany.”

You and other Board members recently spearheaded an external institutional review issued last January, with a report and recommendations. How will you be using this survey?

Recognizing that every institution has both strengths and weaknesses, we viewed a new presidency as the perfect time for a real, honest assessment of the College to provide a blueprint for the future. The decision on the part of President Miller to release the results for open discussion was, I think, a good move in keeping with the strong sense of community at Bethany. In fact, it was liberating to have the results on the table. While certainly not all Bethanians agreed with every recommendation, there is a sense on campus of, “Good, let’s get on with it.”

As a frequent author and lecturer on leadership and growth issues, please talk about the role of alumni and volunteer leadership in setting a course for the next decade at the College.

Although Bethany’s endowment doesn’t allow us to generate strategic change by buying it, our alumni give us a clear competitive advantage. Not only are Bethanians famously loyal to their alma mater, but they are also known for their passion about the College and their experience as part of this community. By tapping into this passion and giving alumni a chance to be part of a winning success story, the College will find that alumni and volunteer leadership will come through.

You are global managing partner of one of the largest law firms in the world, with more than 1,600 attorneys in offices around the world. Would you please comment on the role of liberal arts colleges in preparing young men and women for global leadership?

There is nothing temporary about emerging markets in Asia and elsewhere; clearly, they are transforming our world. I travel to our offices throughout the globe, and I’ve observed that the best prepared individuals are those who can move in and out of countries, situations and cultures comfortably. It is exactly this flexibility and openness that liberal arts colleges like Bethany foster. As the world becomes smaller, it is skill sets such as those emphasized at Bethany—the ability to think, write and communicate clearly—that are going to be in great demand.

On a personal note, your wife is also a Bethany alumna. Did you meet on campus? Would you share a bit about her and her experience in the Bethany community? Yes, Ellen is also an alumna (’81), an art history major, and we did meet on campus. Both of us were active in the respective Greek letter organizations (she in Phi Mu, and I in Beta Theta Pi), and I think that the fraternity and sorority experience is part of which gives the undergraduate experience at Bethany such richness and texture. It gives the undergraduate experience at Bethany that liberal arts colleges like Bethany foster. As the world becomes smaller, it is skill sets such as those emphasized at Bethany—the ability to think, write and communicate clearly—that are going to be in great demand.

At age 48, GREGORY B. JORDAN ’81 is one of the nation’s youngest global managing partners, providing day-to-day direction to a top-20 law firm. A leading global law firm with offices in 17 United States cities and nine cities overseas, Reed Smith LLP represents Fortune 100 as well as mid-market and emerging companies. Tapped in 2001 by his peers at Reed Smith LLP, a 1,600-lawyer firm representing many of the nation’s largest and most successful companies, Jordan was honored in 2003 by The American Lawyer as one of the nation’s “most outstanding attorneys under the age of 45 in private practice.” The only Pennsylvania lawyer named among the select group hailed as “the private bar’s next generation of leaders,” he has been listed in The Best Lawyers in America since 1995. The youngest elected managing partner in the firm’s history, Jordan also chairs Reed Smith’s Senior Management Team and Executive Committee and is a member of the Litigation Group whose private clients include leading financial services and entertainment companies. His successes in and out of the courtroom are well-documented; they include a highly visible landmark victory in April 2000 in the iCrave TV case on behalf of the Motion Picture Association of America, a formative case in the application of copyright and trademark laws to the Internet.

Based in Pittsburgh, Jordan graduated magna cum laude with a political science major from Bethany College in 1981 and cum laude from the University of Pittsburgh School of Law in 1984, where he was a member of the Law Review and Order of the Coif. He joined Reed Smith later that year. A native of Wheeling, W.Va., he currently resides in Sewickley, Pa., with his wife, Ellen, ’81, and two daughters. He has been a member of the Bethany College Board of Trustees since 2002 and its chair since 2006.

“By crossing this threshold, we will be ensuring a vibrant and vital future for Bethany.”

As one of the world’s top attorneys, you could doubtless serve on almost any corporate or executive board of your choice. Why, then, is Bethany College such a special passion?

I’m one of many alumni who are especially passionate about what the College has done for me; I wouldn’t be where I am today without the skills I acquired there. At Bethany, I learned how to be both a team member and a leader; the College not only tells you how to be a leader, but actually lets you do it. It gave me a strong sense of self as well as being a confidence-building experience. My participation in fraternity life, various internships, the Washington, D.C. program, January term and working with the West Virginia Legislature gave me a definite head start.

Bethany can forge connections that it needs and deserves to have. It’s my hope that my skills will be useful in helping to sell the College and to introduce it to, for example, leading corporations, philanthropists and private foundations so that Bethany can forge connections that it needs and deserves to have.

I believe that Bethany students get as good an international education as any school in the country. Many of Maffett’s majors participate in The Washington Center program, which provides professional internships to students in a variety of academic disciplines. Most of these students return to Washington, D.C., after graduating from Bethany, landing rewarding and fulfilling jobs there. “With more than 25 Bethany alumni in his D.C. network, Maffett frequently takes students to alumni meetings in Washington and elsewhere to expand their horizons. “When they meet young Bethany alumni just a few years older than themselves, they begin to understand their own possibilities,” he notes. A Ph.D. in international relations graduate of the London School of Economics with an Master of Arts degree from American University, Maffett is encouraged that today’s students are “beginning to sit up and pay serious attention” to the issues he espouses. “Mine is a positive and hopeful message,” he concludes. “While I’m perhaps a bit of a cynic at times, I also want to leave students with an urgent sense that if we act now, they can still make a difference.”

Much like the final crescendo of a pyrotechnics display, Maffett’s energy explodes in many directions. Unlike the fireworks though, his burst shows no signs of dissipating soon. A sign on his office door perhaps best exemplifies his teaching mission: “If you’re not outraged, you’re not paying attention.”

Clint of All Trades

Dr. Clint W. Maffett imparts his explosive knowledge of global issues upon Bethany’s students

WERE HE A HOLIDAY, Dr. Clint W. Maffett would likely be Independence Day—a July 4th firecracker bursting with dynamic energy. “I am passionate about not just engaging students intellectually in the pressing issues of world politics, but inspiring them emotionally as well,” says Dr. Maffett, chair of Bethany’s Department of Political Science and History and professor of international relations. Having worked in Congress and in the foreign policy community in Washington, D.C., he brings comprehensive practical as well as academic expertise to global warming, oil production, international energy security, military and defense policy, developing nations, and an entire host of other policy issues as he teaches environmental literacy across a span of courses.

“Despite the critical importance of energy and the environment, the great majority of students are unaware of these issues,” he notes. “Many of our students graduate from college without knowing anything about fossil fuels, global warming and the solutions at hand. I do what I can to instill some ‘environmental literacy’ into their education because it is clear that our educational system, our media and our politics have failed in this respect.”

A former legislative assistant to former Senator Sam Nunn, Maffett worked on the Armed Services Committee and participated in drafting the Nunn-Lugar Act which assisted in securing the former Soviet Union’s nuclear inventory. He later worked as an energy security analyst for the government and continues to consult on issues relating to international energy security. From this experience, Maffett tries to bring to class the real world importance of the issues being discussed and to push students into careers that will allow them to find solutions to various problems.

A strong believer in experiential education, Maffett emphasizes study abroad, travel and professional internships in an effort to develop the confidence that students need to succeed. He has taken students on trips abroad some 35 times in his 16 years at Bethany. Gambia, an African nation, is among the most frequently visited.

“Some of my former students work in the (Gambian) government, and such a trip gives students great insight into the governance problems of a lesser developed nation,” he notes.

An honors psychology major, Adams is a lead student representative to President Miller’s Installation Planning Committee, Mary Lu brings strong organizational, planning and writing skills to all she does—as a Presidential intern, vice president of her Alpha Xi Delta sorority and a Psychology lab proctor.

“The opportunities to hone my writing and speaking skills, learn conflict resolution and time management—all of these student leadership responsibilities will help me in my later life and career.”

“Excelling academically at Bethany, she has been tapped for both psychology and music honoraries, Psi Chi and Sigma Tau Epsilon, respectively, as well as Bethany Kallon and Gamma Sigma Kappa, the College-wide leadership honorary society.

Last summer, Mary Lu served as a resident assistant at the three-week West Virginia Governor’s Honors Academy on campus. The previous two summers were spent as a student at the Royal School of Church Music, an Anglican choir school, in New York City.

“Music will always be a big part of my life as an avocation,” she recalls.

Higher education administration, however, is her career focus. She is currently exploring graduate programs in psychology.

athletic department inducted four new members into soccer team. For his career, Weekley was a four-year letterman for the football team and a two-year letterman for the wrestling program. He played on the defensive line his first two seasons, before moving to the offensive line his final two years and earned All-PAC laurels both seasons. He was the first Bethany player to play in every varsity game for his entire four-year career and helped the Green and White post a 18-12-1 mark during his tenure.

Ed Blundon was a four-year letterman for the Bison men’s basketball program. He was a key member of the 1963-64 Bethany team which went a perfect 18-0 and won the PAC championship. Two years later as a senior captain, he averaged 14 on Senior Day. One of the players who was competing in his final game ed the Green and White six consecutive games, in a night game on Oct. 15.

An extremely youthful Bison team, which started as many as nine freshmen during the season, had two players chosen for All-PAC accolades. Forward Cassie Spalding grabbed First Team status, making her the first Bethany freshman since 2000 to receive that honor. She led the team in points (24) and goals (11), the most scored by any Bison in one year since Missy Gibson tallied 15 in 2000 and the highest total posted by a BC freshman since Missy Miller netted 14 in 1992. Spalding, who was named PAC Offensive Player of the Week once during the season, had three games with multiple goals and drove home three game-winners.

Although the Bison fall sports teams did not capture any PAC championships, there were many memorable performances from teams and individuals and many of the programs which featured young, inexperienced rosters took steps towards building for strong years ahead.

Bethany's second win came Oct. 25 in the form of a 31-24 upset over Waynesburg, a team which had dethricted the Green and White six consecutive games. The Bison closed the season out in style, cruising past Saint Vincent 44-14 on Senior Day. One of the players who was competing in his final game made it one for the record books, as WR Taylor McNeil caught 10 passes for a school-record 279 yards and two touchdowns in the victory. The record was one of 8 that was either broken or tied during the campaign.

Making the Grade

Bison Student-Athletes in the Classroom

A PAIR OF BETHANY student-athletes were voted to ESPN The Magazine/CosIDA Academic All-District teams for the fall seasons for their work in the classroom and on the fields of competition.

The Bison honored junior Megan Cook, who was voted Third Team Academic All-District II for women’s soccer and junior Tim Stefanuzi, who received Second Team recognition in football. To be eligible, a student-athlete must be a varsity starter or key reserve, maintain a cumulative GPA of 3.30 on a scale of 4.00, have reached sophomore athletic and academic standing at their current institution and be nominated by their sports information director. All Division II, III and NAA institutions in Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia make up District II.

On the soccer field, Cook was a key part of the Bison (7-1-4) recording their best season since they won the PAC championship in 1999. The junior defender played in all 19 matches, including two starts, and her play in the back helped Bethany set a school-record with six shutouts.

In the classroom, Cook has better then a 3.9 GPA as a psychology major. She’s made the Dean’s List and PAC Academic Honor Roll twice and works as a psychology lab proctor. Cook is a member of the Psi Chi Psychology Honor Society, serves as Public Relations head for Phi Mu, as the women’s soccer representative for Bethany’s Student-Athlete Advisory Committee and as Executive Recruitment Chair for Panhellicnial Council.

In the community, Cook was a youth minister assistant this past summer and volunteers with Big Brothers, Big Sisters.

“Since my involvement as head women’s soccer coach, Megan has been a model student-athlete,” said Bethany head coach Barry Christmas. “Her attitude around the program has been positive and her ability to manage her academic and athletic responsibilities is a shining example. Megan deserves this award and I am proud to say she is part of the Bethany soccer program.”

Stefanuzi is in his third year as a defensive lineman for the Bison (5-2). He played in seven games this season and had seven tackles to his credit, including three solos. His stop in the Grove City contest went for a one-yard loss and he was in on three hits against Westminster.

Academically, Stefanuzi has better than a 3.55 GPA as a forensic chemistry major. He’s made the Dean’s List three semesters and earned PAC Academic Honor Roll honors once.

Tim has come as far as anyone in the program for us,” said Bison head coach Tim Wolsom. “As a freshman, we wondered if he would ever be able to contribute, but he has worked hard every day and is now a valuable contributor on the defensive line for us. Academically, Tim uses that same strong work ethic in the classroom as he does on the field to maintain one of the highest GPAs on the team.”

Bethany head coach Mark Swiger, Sophomore Suzanne Stettinius (9th) and junior Maggie McCourt (12th) led the Bethany women’s cross-country team as they took eighth place overall.

Sophomore Courtney Meadows, the lone Bison to gain All-PAC honors, was freshman Courtney Meadows, who was selected Honorable Mention after she led Bethany in kills (292) and ranked fourth on the team in digs (138). At setter, freshman Megan Hoffinan finished with 79 assists, the eighth-most in one season by a Bison.

Volleyball

JUST LIKE THE women’s soccer program, the volleyball team under second-year coach Courtney Kline came into the year with an extraordinarily young team. By the end of the season, three of the Bison’s four top hitters were freshmen to go along with a first-year setter and the top defensive player was also a freshman. The youthful squad played close, competitive matches throughout the season and gained valuable experience to carry into next year.

Women’s Tennis

THE BISON WOMEN’S tennis team’s season was highlighted by a pair of victories.

The first of those wins was 6-3 decision over W&J Sept. 13, which was the program’s first victory in nearly three years, as they broke a string of 32 consecutive dual match losses. Sophomore Bethany Stickney keyed the win by registering victories at first singles and first doubles with playing partner Ashley Current.

Bethany would make it a winning streak when they knocked off Chatham 7-2 just three days later. Current won both her matches that day, as did junior Lisa Pfadenhauer, freshman Lucero Lopez and senior Tony Douglas.

For violations of this bylaw in which the value of the offer or inducement is $100 or less, the eligibility of the individual (i.e., prospective or enrolled student-athlete) shall not be affected conditioned on the individual repaying the value of the benefit to a charity of his or her choice. Cross Country

ON THE CROSS country trails, the Bison women took home third place at the Rio Grande Invitational during the season under head coach Mark Swiger. Sophomore Suzanne Stettinius (9th) and junior Maggie McCourt (12th) led the Bethany women’s cross-country team, as well as the PAC Championship meet. Stettinius took home 11th place overall and McCourt earned 13th to receive Second Team All-PAC accolades, as the first BC runners to garner all-conference recognition since 2005. Their efforts helped Bethany place fifth overall out of eight teams.

Bethany’s men were decimated by injuries during the season and forced to run as individuals throughout most of the year.

Summy Era at Bethany Starts With a Win

NEW BETHANY men’s basketball coach Mike Summy saw his coaching tenure at the school get off to a winning start, as the Bison defeated LaRoche 77-61 Nov. 17 in the season opener for both teams.

Although they were the only two who received Academic All-District recognition, a total of 10 Bison student-athletes were nominated for the honor from the football, volleyball and men’s and women’s soccer teams. Women’s tennis and cross country nominations are taken during the spring. The next Academic All-America/All-District awards will be for basketball during the winter season.

A Solid Start
Jim Hettler Memorial Scholarship Awarded

Kevin Sarafian, a freshman from Pittsburgh, Pa., has been selected as this year’s recipient of the Jim Hettler Memorial Scholarship.

The scholarship was established in memory of James R. Hettler ’52. A retired telecommunications executive who resided in Williamsburg, Va., he passed away on June 12, 2006.

Jim Hettler’s roots run deep in the Hettler family. His father, George C. Hettler, ’12, served as Bethany’s business manager and assistant director and assistant to the President during the 1930s and 1940s. His brother, Bill Hettler, served on the faculty in the late 40’s and early 50’s. His mother Frances Rank, brother Bob Hettler, sister Amy McElroy, an uncle, and two cousins were also among the relatives that graduated from Bethany. Jim met his wife, Miriam (Mim) Finch Hettler, during the freshman year at Bethany.

Hettler played basketball and baseball at Bethany. His most memorable basketball game came on Dec. 9, 1949. That’s when the 6-4 freshman battled Mark Workman, West Virginia University’s 6-10 All-American, to a virtual standstill in a narrow 62-60 loss for the Bison.

Hettler also excelled in the classroom and the community. He was a member and officer of the Kalon honor society and an honor student in Biology. A member and treasurer of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Hettler still found time to serve on the student church board despite working his way through school.

He continued his involvement with the College throughout the years following his graduation. He and his wife were both active members of Bethany’s Alumni Council.

The Jim Hettler Memorial Scholarship will be presented annually to a first-year student at Bethany College who has demonstrated strong academic abilities and has a record of extensive involvement in high school extracurricular activities.

To make a contribution in support of the Jim Hettler Memorial Scholarship Fund, send a check to The Bethany Fund, c/o Center for Institutional Advancement, Bethany College, P.O. Box 419, Bethany, WV 26032-0419. Write the words, “Jim Hettler Memorial Scholarship Fund,” on the memo line of the check.

Hettler played basketball and baseball at Bethany. His most memorable basketball game came on Dec. 9, 1949. That’s when the 6-4 freshman battled Mark Workman, West Virginia University’s 6-10 All-American, to a virtual standstill in a narrow 62-60 loss for the Bison.

Hettler also excelled in the classroom and the community. He was a member and officer of the Kalon honor society and an honor student in Biology. A member and treasurer of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, Hettler still found time to serve on the student church board despite working his way through school.

He continued his involvement with the College throughout the years following his graduation. He and his wife were both active members of Bethany’s Alumni Council.

The Jim Hettler Memorial Scholarship will be presented annually to a first-year student at Bethany College who has demonstrated strong academic abilities and has a record of extensive involvement in high school extracurricular activities.
